RUSSIAN RECOVERY DUE TO ALEXIEFF

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Petrograd, Oct. 6.—On September 5 Russian Imperial Headquarters issued an official review of the events on the Russian front from the same date a year before, when the Czar assumed supreme command of all the armed forces on land and sea, appointing General Alexieff as chief of staff.

Russia's wonderful recovery from those days of retreat, in the face of superior forces, to the Dvina, has been in no small measure due to the sagacity and organizing abilities of General Alexieff.

As a matter of fact, his appointment was signalized by a reversion from the defensive to the offensive in the direction of Tarnopol, when the Austro-Germans were thrown back with a loss of 40,000 prisoners and valuable military booty.

Then began the reorganization of Russia's army and the collecting of necessary war material until all was ready for the grand advance of June, 1916.

General Michael Vassilievitch Alexieff, the actual commander in chief of the Russian armies in the west, is all efficient. Born a poor man, he has risen to the top through the force of his intellect alone.

The general is now 50 years old, and is of peasant stock. His face shows his plebeian origin. It is not a characteristically Russian face. It is rather Finnish, having several distinctly Mongolian features, as, for instance, the high cheek bones, the narrow, deep set eyes, which are distinctly Asiatic. But he has also a high forehead, which marks him a man of intellect. There are those who say he is all intellect and nothing else. It is certain he lacks social graces. He is personally shy and dislikes society.

When he was proposed for the post of chief of staff to the emperor, which meant that he would be the real commander, he asked to be excused from eating at the same table as the emperor, as that would mean he would have to entertain prominent guests at the meals.

The Czar is himself a shy man, and so, understanding the feelings of his lieutenant, he granted the request. General Alexieff eats his meals alone. Simply served, he eats from a simple and in any form. The sooner he is through, the sooner he is able to get back to work.

Work is his one appetite. When he entered the army he had but one qualification, an exceptional brain. Before the Turkish, 1878, war he had managed to get some education at the Military Academy at Moscow, where he left at the age of 17. In the war he was wounded three times and was also promoted. For a number of years prior to the Japanese war he was a professor of military history at the various military schools in Russia.

His passion for details is infinite. He never leaves anything to his subordinates. All the strings he wants to keep in his own hand, which may or may not be an advantage.

During the great retreat of last year he directed every stage of the march himself. He had been in command on that front before and knew the ground. At certain points he formed fresh units and delivered counter attacks against the pursuing German cavalry, while he was preparing the positions in the rear on which the Russian armies have held their own ever since.

He has the early days of the war his command became famous for the number of officers that were dropped from them. When he came to the new post he would go through the rolls like a whirlwind, dismissing the inefficient without pity, and picking men that he knew to be efficient to fill their places.

The consequence was that it was soon remarked that wherever Alexieff was in command there was efficiency, the work was done promptly and done well. There was no shirking, no excusing, and in time it became evident that this man was the logical head for the whole army. There was no other choice.

AUGUSTUS J. SIMPSON KILLED BY A FALL

Prominent Business Man at Phoenixia Dead as Result of Falling From Beam at Village Reservoir.

Augustus J. Simpson, who has been one of the best known men in Ulster county for many years, met death a few minutes before six o'clock Thursday afternoon while supervising repairs on the reservoir of the Phoenixia water works, of which he was superintendent and treasurer.

The Phoenixia reservoir is situated on the hill opposite the Phoenixia railroad station and above the old Longyear farm. There is considerable of a climb to reach the place, and after going there with several workmen at four o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Simpson worked steadily until five minutes of six o'clock, when he walked out on a twelve-inch beam which it is necessary to traverse in order to operate the gate valve. The water had been drawn from the reservoir in order to make repairs to the valve, which is twenty feet below the level of the beam, and one of the workmen was busy with the valve when Mr. Simpson started to walk out on the beam. He was directly above the workman when the latter saw Mr. Simpson's hat fall at his feet and before he could look up, without a murmur or a sound of any kind, Mr. Simpson's body fell headlong beside him, striking on the head. It is presumed that Mr. Simpson's heart gave out while he was walking on the beam, from over-exertion, and that he was dead before he struck the bottom of the reservoir. He was dead when Dr. John C. Gross reached the scene a few minutes later.

Mr. Simpson was born at the old Simpson homestead at Phoenixia on August 27, 1857, and was a son of the late James A. Simpson and Julia A. Longyear. His father for many years conducted a general store at Phoenixia. Mr. Simpson was educated at the Phoenixia school and at Kingston Academy. He learned telegraphy after leaving school and became operator for the Ulster & Delaware railroad at Big Indian, where he remained for one year, after which he was promoted to the position of station agent at Phoenixia, which he filled for three years. He resigned to become associated with his father in the general store business and succeeded to his father on the latter's death in 1890. He has conducted the store business since and was one of the most successful merchants in that section. Sixteen years ago he was appointed postmaster of Phoenixia, and he continued to hold that position until the time of his death under successive administrations, the post office being located in his store.

For many years Mr. Simpson was active in Republican politics. He was a member of the Republican county committee for many years, representing the Phoenixia district, and in 1884-85 served the town of Shandaken as supervisor. He attended many political conventions and at one time was a candidate for assemblyman in the First assembly district. Mr. Simpson was popular with everyone. He was kind-hearted and genial, generous to a fault, ever ready to aid those who were unfortunate. He was a keen judge of human nature and his ready Scotch wit and sound judgment were matched with natural diplomacy which combined to make his advice much sought after. Fraternally he was affiliated with Kingston Lodge No. 10, Free and Accepted Masons, of the city; Phoenixia Lodge No. 154, I. O. O. F., and Shandaken Lodge No. 256, Knights of Pythias.

In 1884 Mr. Simpson married Emma L. Osborne of Windham, Greene county, who survives him. He is also survived by one brother, Jay H. Simpson of Phoenixia.

Funeral services will be held at Kingston Lodge No. 10, Free and Accepted Masons, of the city; Phoenixia Lodge No. 154, I. O. O. F., and Shandaken Lodge No. 256, Knights of Pythias.

NOBODY HOME FOR 1917 CONVENTION

Goshen Finally Chosen for Orange County Firemen's Gathering. Want Ban on Lotteries at Firemen's Fairs Removed.

Chief Charles Higham of the Middletown Fire Department was elected president of the Orange County Firemen's Association Thursday at the convention in Newburgh. No city or village appeared anxious to entertain the next year's convention and finally it was decided to hold it in Goshen. The cost of entertaining firemen was also discussed, that being figured at 22 cents a man with much of the pro- vender donated.

Mountain Hose Company of Cornwall, an organization outside the association, was defined as not being "a real fire company, being composed of bankers and brokers and other wealthy men who joined simply to avoid jury duty."

The association voted to have Orange county legislators endeavor to amend the law which prohibits lottery or chance-taking enterprises at firemen's entertainments or fairs. Forty-six companies with 33 bands took part in the parade.

PLANNING BUSINESS MEN'S NOON CLASS

Y. M. C. A. Expects to Start Physical Class to Meet Once a Week—Bowling Alleys Open Saturday.

In response to queries from several local business men Physical Director L. C. Godfrey of the local Y M. C. A. said this morning that efforts will be made to start a noon class for the business men of the city to meet at the association once a week from 12:15 to 1 o'clock for physical exercise. The class will meet in the big gym and go through a health drill, play games and wind up with a dip in the big pool. Heavy work will not be indulged in, but the main idea is to afford the business man exercise enough to keep him in physical trim for his work. As soon as enough members are secured for the class the final plans will be made. The class will probably meet on a Monday noon.

The bowling alleys which have been undergoing repairs will be thrown open on Saturday evening. The bowling alleys when repairs are completed will be the finest along the river. This will be good news for the bowling fans who have been looking forward to the opening of the alleys.

A Suit Over a Suit.

Thursday evening in city court before Judge Brindley the trial of the suit brought by Joseph Netburn, the tailor, against Frank A. Myers, to recover $14, was finished and the court reserved decision. Andrew J. Cook appeared for the plaintiff and W. H. Grogan for defendant. Mr. Netburn claims he sold Mr. Myers a suit of clothes in May of this year, and that Mr. Myers had failed to pay for the suit. Mr. Myers on the other hand claims the agreement was that the suit was to fit him, but when he tried it on it was too small. He also claims that Netburn agreed if the suit did not fit to give him another suit. He claims he took the suit, back and that Netburn refused to give him another.

DAIRYMEN DEMAND FULL SURRENDER

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Utica, Oct. 6.—To the Borden company's offer of milk prices meeting those demanded by the State Dairymen's League, but without recognizing the league, the farmers of central and southern New York today flung back a demand to the New York distributing companies of "unconditional surrender." From branches of the league in Borden station towns, with an aggregate of 600 farmers and nearly 200,000 pounds of milk came this demand.

At practically every Borden station the managers had received their instructions before the concession was announced publicly in New York. In some cases the managers had not been able to see the heads of the league and in some instances the league officials were called on the telephone, and asked what they would do regarding the offer. Invariably the reply was that recognition of the league was more important than price; that a one month contract such as offered would not be considered in any event; and that the Borden and all the other milk companies must come to the farmers if they wished to do business. The farmers of central New York will agree to nothing short of the league demands in full—price, six months' contract and recognition, with the last first in importance.

A report from Clinton today was that the Harlem Dairy Products Company, one of the New York distributing companies, had capitulated to the league and signed a league contract, with the branch, which will go into operation if the state headquarters agree to it. League prices for six months are said to be embodied in the contract.

New York, Oct. 6.—Conspiracy charges in the milk controversy are the basis of an inquiry begun here today by the attorney general's department through Deputy Attorney M. E. Lewis. Every phase of the situation will be investigated.

The shortage of milk was more serious than at any time since the milk strike began. Less than thirty per cent of the normal supply was delivered. Special police guards were detailed to the Harlem milk stations to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's disturbance.

MRS. WINCHELL KILLED BY TRAIN

Struck as She Was Crossing Tracks Near Higginsville—Body Brought to Rondout—Coroner Notified.

JOHN H. BASSETT RAISED A RUCTION

Negro Alleged to Have Drawn Knife on Young Man Who Came to Rescue Fair Marie From Negro's Clutches.

John Henry Bassett, a downtown negro, was arrested in a saloon near the Sleighsborough ferry on Thursday evening by Policemen White and Fout, who when they searched him found a knife with the blade open in John's pocket. John Henry will be arraigned later today before Judge McKenzie at Port Ewen on a charge of assault in the second degree preferred by Harris Liming, a young man residing in Port Ewen.

From the story as told it seems that Thursday evening John Henry crossed to Sleighsborough on the Skillypot. On the boat was a woman whose first name is Marie. When she was arrested some time ago on a charge of public intoxication and arraigned before Recorder Lang she gave the name of Marie Smith. She was formerly employed as a housekeeper by Nathan Shule of the lower section of the city, and is now employed as housekeeper by a family in Port Ewen.

While walking up the Sleighsborough hill the woman was assaulted by the negro, but broke away and continued on up the hill until she reached what is known as "the flats." Here she was again assaulted by the negro and she screamed "Murder." Some young boys hearing her cries, rushed to the scene. The negro it is claimed drew a knife and drove the boys off. Young Liming claims the negro slashed at him cutting his clothing.

An auto came along shortly afterward and picked the woman up and took her down to the ferry.

In the meantime John Henry had retraced his steps to the ferry. As the ferry berthed on the Sleighsborough side Mr. Liming, father of the young man, who had been in Kingston stepped off the boat. It is said the negro pulled a knife on Mr. Liming. The negro crossed on the ferry, and Mr. Liming securing a small boat rowed across to Rondout and there met the officers. They accompanied him to the saloon where Mr. Liming pointed him out as the man who had pulled a knife on him. John Henry was immediately placed under arrest.

At this time Mr. Liming did not know that the negro had slashed at his son with the same knife and did not learn it until he reached home. Marie up to noon today had lodged no complaint against the negro.

It will be seen that retail prices even with the raise of forty cents a ton announced are still lower than Kingston retail prices.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

We are all imperfect and the two things that make it possible for imperfect people to live together in peace and joy are forgiving and forgetting.

FOR DAINTY APPETITES.

Cut an unpeeled eggplant in one-fourth-inch slices, salt each; put them together again and press under a heavy weight an hour or more. Cut them into equal lengths a fourth of an inch wide, rejecting the skin, dry them and roll them in flour and cornmeal mixed; season with salt, pepper, and a dash of nutmeg. Drop a few at a time into hot olive oil and fry until a delicate brown. Drain on soft paper and serve at once.

Macaroni Savory.—Take a quart of cooked macaroni, two green peppers, two onions, chop the vegetables and fry 15 minutes in olive oil, tossing them constantly; add one cupful of tomatoes and a half cupful of grated cheese.

Masked Sweetbreads.—Remove the pipes and skin from a pound of blanched sweetbreads, then put through the meat grinder with two slices of salt pork. Form into cutlets and roll them in cheesecloth to keep their shape. Place on ice to become firm. After an hour or two saute them on one side, only using butter; then place them in a buttered baking sheet, baked side up. Cover them with the following mixture:

Scald a small onion in water ten minutes, drain and slice it and cook in a tablespoonful of butter until it is slightly brown; add one cupful of stock and cook until tender; press through a sieve with the stock. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter; add a third of a cupful of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a little paprika. Add enough cream to the onion and stock mixture to make one and a third cupful; add this to the mixture in the pan; when boiling, add one large egg, cook for a moment, then add a dash of cayenne and nutmeg. Cover the sweetbreads about a fourth of an inch with this. Cool, then cover with bread crumbs, mixed in melted butter. Place a whole mushroom, cooked in butter, on each cutlet, and garnish with strips of truffle or red and green peppers. Bake ten minutes. Serve with a brown mushroom sauce around the edge of the plate with a mound of fried eggplant straws in the center.

TORREY IS GIVEN DANNEMORA TERM

Sentenced for Minimum of Three and One-Half Years, Accused Thanks Court—Judge Jenkins Replies to Prisoners' Criticism on Absence of Jury—Former Supervisor Indicted.

The celerity with which four prisoners in county court pleaded guilty on Wednesday to indictments which were returned against them then by the grand jury was followed this morning by pleas of guilty by two more prisoners after they had made an unsuccessful attempt to hold the district attorney's office responsible for the absence of a trial jury which would allow them an immediate trial. Judge Jenkins promptly dispelled the prisoners' attack on the prosecuting officer by stating that not only had no prisoners ever displayed such anxiety for immediate trial during the four years he has been on the bench, but that District Attorney Traver had brought to the attention of the court the matter of having a jury present so that no man might be deprived of his right to speedy determination of his case.

New Prisoner Arraigned.

As an outcome of the investigation of affairs of the town of Marbletown under the administration of former Supervisor Philip Hasbrouck, the grand jury indicted Mr. Hasbrouck for grand larceny in the first degree, in appropriating to his own use $5,250 of the funds of the town, and Hasbrouck was arraigned, a bench warrant for his arrest having been issued after the grand jury returned a sealed indictment on Wednesday. Through his attorney, Frank W. Brooks, Hasbrouck entered a plea of not guilty. Bail was fixed at $2,000, and later Judge Jenkins approved Hasbrouck's bond and he was released.

George Bonesteel, a young man, was arraigned to answer to two indictments, one charging burglary in the third degree, in having entered a building of Cornelius Phillips in the town of Hurley on July 18th, and the other charging him with unlawfully entering the building of Ira Elmendorf in the same town on the same date. Bonesteel pleaded not guilty to each indictment and John M. Cashin was assigned to defend him.

Reforming Woodstock Offenders.

After having arraigned the defendants against whom sealed indictments were found, District Attorney Traver moved sentence in the cases of The People against Louis Harrison, Cornelius Henry Krause and Orville Purdy, the three young men living at Zena, who pleaded guilty on Wednesday to having entered the new house of John H. Harrison at Zena.

To Harrison, Judge Jenkins said: "In your case, I have decided to give you corrective measures outside of the reformatory to which I would sentence you under ordinary circumstances. The place for you is the reformatory, and that is where I would be compelled to send you if I did not adopt the alternative of outside corrective measures. Your father was compelled to start these proceedings against you in order to check you in your career of crime. I have had a talk with him and I am going to give him further corrective powers than he possesses as your father. This practical suspension of sentence is made on two conditions:

"First, you are not to drink any intoxicating beverages during the period of one year. That includes hard cider, and in fact cider in any form whatever, and if information comes to me that you have broken this condition I will consider that you have broken your parole and will send for you and sentence you to the Elmira Reformatory.

"Second, you are to report to your father every Monday, and you are to obey him in all he says. Do you accept this condition?"

"I do, yes, sir," said Harrison. "Then I appoint your father, John H. Harrison, parole officer in your case," announced Judge Jenkins.

Result of Mother's Efforts.

To Krause, Judge Jenkins said: "I am well pleased with your progress since you were arrested on this charge. You have made some progress and because of that fact you are to be given an opportunity to do better still. You were arrested and placed in jail, but through the efforts of your mother you were allowed to go out on bail. During that time you were practically on parole. I am well pleased with the reports that have come to me of your behavior since that time, and your appearance itself indicates your improved condition.

"In your case, also, I am going to give you an opportunity. In your case, too, I impose the condition that you are to refrain from drinking for one year and I appoint Charles L. Shufeldt probation officer for you. You are to report to him regularly and to obey him as to your companions and company. If information comes to me that you have not reported to him, or that you have committed any crime or otherwise misbehaved, or that you are drinking, I will send for you and send you to the Elmira Reformatory."

Looking for Proper Probation Officer.

To Purdy, Judge Jenkins said: "I intend to treat you precisely as I am treating your two companions, and to give you a chance, although in your case I have had reports of your behavior. In your case I have not yet been able to find a probation officer who will give you the proper attention. I have one man in mind but have not yet been able to communicate with him and I will hold your case until I have done so and see whether he accepts the responsibility of being your probation officer."

Amazing Anxiety For Immediate Trial.

District Attorney Traver said that in the case of The People against the counsel for the defendants desired to make a statement to the court.

John J. Cadigan and Frank D. Smith,

Christopher J. Flanagan, who was assigned on Wednesday to defend Cadigan and Smith, said that the defendants had been indicted for burglary in the third degree and the grand jury had reported the indictments on Wednesday.

Without wishing to criticize anyone, said Mr. Flanagan, he believed the district attorney's office had not acted in good faith in not opposing the discharge of the trial jury from further attendance at this term of court two days before the grand jury reported. The district attorney must have known then that some of the defendants would want to be tried at this term of court, but he had not opposed the discharge of the trial jury.

The constitution guarantees an immediate trial to a person charged with crime; these defendants were strangers in our midst and the result of the discharge of the trial jury was that, crime of burglary was committed with these two men, with five others similarly employed, took up quarters under the shelter of a projecting roof of a building near a saloon, and during the day frequent trips were made by members of the party between the building and the saloon.

These two young men, said Mr. Flanagan, finally went to the saloon and when they returned they discovered their companions were missing. They did not know where they had gone, but noticed that a board had been removed from the empty building under whose roof they had sheltered themselves from the rain, and entered to see if they were there. They found that someone who had been in the building had removed a part of the plumbing. While they were in the building officers appeared and arrested them. Under these circumstances he did not believe they were guilty of burglary, but as they had no business in the building they were willing to plead guilty to a charge of unlawfully entering a building, which was a misdemeanor and not a felony.

Anxiety for Trial Quite Unusual.

"The district attorney is in no wise connected with the discharge of the jury," said Judge Jenkins. "It is quite the usual thing for defendants who do not plead guilty to ask that their cases be sent over to the next term of court than that at which the indictment is found against them, and the reason for that is that they can use the intervening period in getting ready for trial.

"In the four years during which I have been on the bench there has not been a case where a defendant who has been indicted has asked for a trial at the same term of court at which the indictment was found against him, and as the district attorney has nothing to do with discharge of the jury from

ONE OF KINGSTON'S HEALTH GUARDIANS

Former Supervisor John L. Salzmanna of the Ninth ward is one of the most versatile men in Kingston. When the health authorities of the city decided to have a quarantine squad to guard the entrances to the city Mr. Salzmanna was one of the first men appointed as a member of the squad. He was one of the most efficient members on the force. While the former supervisor weighs over two hundred pounds yet he is as agile and alert as any man in the city. Despite his weight he was able to cover as much ground as the other members of the squad—whether standing still or on the move. No matter what line of work Mr. Salzmanna takes up he is sure to make a success of it whether as a baker, a singer, a politician or a special cop. His many friends will have no difficulty in recognizing his smiling face in the cut shown here taken while he was a member of the "police" squad. Friends who have seen his picture garbed in his uniform say there is quite a resemblance to Inspector Schmittberger, of the New York City police force.

Your inspection of the many beautiful up-to-date Gas Lighting fixtures on display at this office is especially desired during National Gas Lighting Week, October 9-14.

The new Gas fixtures mark what is practically a revolution in the art of Gas Lighting. A thousand or more distinctive designs enables one to select the style most suitable for adding to the attractiveness of his home. Fixtures may be as elaborate or as simple as one wishes—each type possesses artistic qualities of the highest order.

The new fixtures embrace table lamps, portables, domes, showers and semi-indirect globes—as well as many simpler styles. The pilot attachment eliminates the need of matches.

We will appreciate your attendance at this Gas Lighting Exposition.

On the Beautiful River

An Episode of a Century Ago

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

When what is now known as the middle west was opened up to civilization the Ohio river was the main thoroughfare for emigrants moving in that direction, and the flatboat was their conveyance. Flatboats were built of boards, their propelling power being the river's current, and when the emigrant reached his destination the lumber was used to build his house.

The great danger of the earliest voyagers on la belle riviere (the beautiful river) was the Indians. The scum of civilization is always washed toward new countries, and mingled with the redskins were white men who assisted their native allies to plunder the emigrants by acting as decoys. The renegade would call to the flatboatman to come and take him aboard; that he had been captured by Indians and escaped and if recaptured would be tortured and killed. If the voyager yielded to the call he would be ambushed by the savages.

With the beginning of the nineteenth century the Indians had largely been eradicated, but the low grade whites remained. The river from time to time was infested by pirates, who, though they did not always murder, robbed their victims.

It was during the second decade of the nineteenth century that a flatboat was carrying a number of passengers between Cincinnati and Louisville. There were an Irishman, a Scotchman and a Frenchman, all of whom had been born in Europe. Besides these were several native Americans, including a carpenter, a gambler and a land speculator.

When the boat reached a turn in the river, called South Bend, about twenty miles south of Cincinnati, while passing near the Kentucky shore, it passed a log cabin before which stood a woman waving a white cloth and indicating by her gestures that she wished to speak with them. The sweeps, which were intended to increase at times the boat's velocity and were needed to give steering way, were manned, and the boat headed for the shore. As soon as it came near enough for the men on it to hear the woman said:

"Kin you thar take me down to Louisville (Louisville)? Ef you're goin' that way pull in byar and throw a line."

"I do not like," said the Frenchman. "To go to ze bank of ze riviere. I have heard that those who go to ze bank of a river are liable to be help neville return to ze channel."

"Nonsense, you bloomin' idiot!" said the Englishman. "You're thinkin' of the last century, when the Indians used renegade whites for decoys. That's all in the past now."

The Irishman acceded with the Englishman (the only case on record). The son of Erin declared that to decline to listen to the call of a woman would be dastardly and no one except a coward would do such a thing. But the Scotchman was in favor of caution.

"I would na go in too far," he said. "Without inquiren' what she wants wi' us."

The commander of the craft paid no attention to these suggestions, but surveyed the woman and her surroundings with a critical eye. But he gave no order to make for the shore.

"That's a low down trick," cried the woman. "For to leave a pore woman who wants to go to her man!"

With this the Englishman, backed by the Irishman, threw out so many innuendoes respecting the captain's action that he gave in, but with a bad grace.

"By the time you all," he said, "have navigated this pore river as long as I have you'll learn that there's only one place in it that's safe—the channel. If you git rid o' your money by this maneuver don't blame me. I hain't got nothin' to lose. Jim, head in!"

The helmsman turned the fore part of the boat toward the shore and when sufficiently near swung the stern in, from which a stout rope was thrown, caught by the woman and made fast to a stump. By the rope the stern of the boat was pulled in so that the woman could be taken aboard. Taking up a bundle tied in a handkerchief, she unwound the rope from the tree and slipped aboard the boat, which the current took down the river.

There were no separate rooms aboard the boat, but the stern was partitioned off into a cabin. This the men gave up to the only woman passenger, betaking themselves to the deck, for in all new countries there is a singular deference on the part of the men for the few women they have among them, and this woman, who was about twenty-five years old, was for a dozen of Kentucky at that time not bad to look upon. True, she had no sooner settled herself on the boat than she produced a cornucopia pipe with a reed stem and began to smoke, but in those days many southern women—unless it were in the longer settled portions—not only smoked, but "dipped," which means they chewed upon snuff balls. She proved an attraction for her fellow passengers, who swarmed about her like flies to a sugar barrel.

"Are you men well armed?" she asked.

Most of them admitted that they were not armed at all. It was their first visit to the country, and they supposed the days when persons went about armed were over.

"Over?" exclaimed the woman. "Just a year fall in with river pirates and you'll find out whether they are over or not."

"Nobody didna tell me anything about river pirates," said the Scotchman anxiously.

"I thought," said the Englishman, "that the law was well enforced in these parts."

"So it is in the towns. You kin git a lot of it in Cincinnati, but who is goin' to take keer o' the law on the river? Do you expect to find court-houses on the bars? Hello, cap'n! You goin' to wreck us on that snag?"

The boat was guided safely around the trunk of a dead tree the roots of which were partly submerged in shallow water, the branches standing in position to receive anything the current might bear to them. And the woman proceeded:

"I got a pistol and a bowie knife with me, but I don't reckon I'll try to use 'em if we're attacked. I don't keer to give up my life, tryin' to save the few dollars I got with me. Besides, the pirates ain't mean enough to sarch a woman, and I got my valybles under my frock."

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the Frenchman. "I have wiz me all ze l'argent for to open a store in Louisville. If ze riviere pirates take it away, what will I do?"

"I've bought a thousand acres," said the land speculator, "on Green river and have $1,000 to pay for it in my money belt. To lose the money would knock me cold."

"Och, murther!" said the Irishman. "I don't believe in river pirates, at all, at all. I've lived in Cincinnati for two years, and I niver heard anything of 'em."

"You didn't, eh?" protested the woman scornfully. "A boatload of 'em pulled up to my cabin yesterday and made me cook a dinner for 'em. They purty nigh skeered me to death, how-somever."

"Did they rob you?" asked the Englishman earnestly.

"No, they didn't rob me, and they paid me for the dinner. They said they wasn't sich low down varmints as to injure a woman."

And she pulled from a pocket in her dress a handful of Mexican silver coins which were the principal small currency in common use in the west at that time.

The flatboat turned a bend in the river, and several miles below a row-boat was seen in the middle of the stream, her crew resting on its oars. As soon as the flatboat had rounded the bend the oars began to dip and rise, the boat moving slowly toward the current.

"Fo, landsake!" exclaimed the woman, "ef thar ain't the boat that stopped at my cabin yesterday!"

"How do you know it's the same?" cried several men at once, paling.

"I ain't shore, but I kin tell purty soon."

"Say," cried the land speculator, "would you mind hangin' my money belt beside your purse?"

"Reckon I will," was the complacent reply.

"And my pocketbook?" said the Englishman.

"And my portemonnaie?" added the Frenchman.

The woman put the purse and the money belt under her tape waistband and stuffed the pocketbook under it. Within a few minutes enough watches were dangling from her waist, sandwiched between the purses and pocketbooks, to do credit to a pawnshop window.

Meanwhile the flatboat was nearing the boat, which now was seen to contain only three men. Those on the flatboat numbered a half dozen, though there were few arms among them. They consulted as to whether they would put up a fight or not. Some were in favor of doing so, but the majority were against it, arguing that the pirates would respect the woman and their valuables were safe without risking their lives.

"I ain't quite shore," said the woman as the flatboat drew near the other, "if they're the men that came to my cabin yesterday or not."

"Well, hold on to the plunder till we're shore," said the Irishman.

"Hello, Sal!" cried one of the men from the boat.

"Lor'dy, Ben, is that you?"

"Reckon. What ye goin'?"

"To Louisville. Jim went over thar a week ago to find somepin to do. He sent for me to take the first chance to follow him."

By this time the rowboat had pulled up beside the other, and a man in it held it to the larger with his hand. The woman walked the deck toward her friends, those on the flatboat remaining where they were.

Suddenly they saw her jump down into the rowboat. It was pushed off, and a few quick strokes sent it out of range of the flatboat.

"These gents," called the woman, "have invited me to go to Louisville with 'em. You'll find your valybles thar when you get thar. You needn't be afraid o' their fallin' into the hands o' river pirates while they're on me. Goodby. Much obliged for takin' me aboard."

The men on the flatboat stood paralyzed at seeing their property thus taken from them without the ability to make any stand for it. The Irishman pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired at the retreating boat, but his shot fell short. The boat as soon as it was out of range turned and made up the river. Since the flatboat could not be propelled upstream the thieves and their woman confederate were perfectly safe from them. Soon they began to row leisurely, reading mocking remarks to those they had robbed.

Origin of the Pitcher.

Some of the earliest drinking vessels were made of skins, sewed together in such a manner as to be water tight. The skins were well tanned, and the vessels made from them were well nigh indestructible. Leather drinking vessels in England were called "black-jacks" and were made in about the same shape as the pitcher of modern times. The inside was coated with a layer of pitch, thus giving rise to our word "pitcher." It is believed.

Berries of the Nightshade.

The berries of the deadly nightshade (Atropa belladonna) are such a tempting fruit for children that both they and their parents ought to know the plant and the terrible danger of eating its berries. These are the source from which the poisons atropine and belladonna are made.

The deadly nightshade grows from three to five feet high on strong branched purple colored stems. Its pointed, oval leaves vary in size and stand in pairs on short foot stalks. The flowers are purple, pendulous and bell shaped. These appear in June and July and give place to shining black berries in August and September.

This plant is one of the same family as the tomato and potato.—New York World.

Getting It Right.

Harold, aged four, was trudging the distance of many blocks with his father to Sunday school, and the four tramp was almost too much for him. The father, glancing back, noticed the small boy's fatigue, and, shaking him, his face asked:

"Am I walking too fast, son?"

"No," returned the small boy, puffing and panting breathlessly, "it's me, papa!"—Exchange.

Color Harmony.

"I'd like a box of cigars, please," said the young wife, looking rosy. "They're for my husband. It's his birthday tomorrow."

"I'll be placing them right on deck," inquired the salesman. "You, little by all means. He has a cold mustache!"—New York World.

Hint for Bachelors.

"Since I have given my best thought to the problem I have not found it especially difficult to take care of my sister-in-law's two-year-old baby while she goes shopping," said the bachelor brother-in-law. "For a time, until I mastered the subject, I must confess that it had me considerably befuddled. But now I merely put the dear little fellow under a tub, weighed down so that by no possibility can he overturn it, and then go out to the barn and read and smoke in peace!"—Judge.

FALL OFFERINGS

FIVE Reasons why you should wear "GOSSARD" CORSETS

FIRST—Decide that your figure is individual—that you need a corset designed for you, and it should be a front-lace corset.

SECOND—Go to the store where competent graduate corsetieres are employed. Insist on an experienced sales person for your fitting.

THIRD—Remember that your corset dollars go farther if you select two corsets at a time. One for home wear and another for social engagements and street wear.

FOURTH—Unless the corset you select gives you all day comfort, good wearing service, and style that is exclusive, your corset fails regardless of what you pay for it.

FIFTH—You can forget the other rules if the Gossard label is sewn in your corset. There is a Gossard for every figure.

An expert corsetiere will deem it a pleasure to fit you without obligation to a Special Gossard designed for your figure at Why Willie can't eat pumpkin pie—"Ma, can I have a piece of pumpkin pie," asked little Willie, as he returned home from high school the other afternoon.

"No, my son," replied the fond mother. "A lady was here today wanting to sell me a medicine book and she said pumpkin seed caused appendicitis."

Willie then went out to the woodshed where he expressed himself in forcible terms, making sure that his ma did not hear him.

Inspired by the work of Constant Reader in writing a three line tragedy Old Subscriber sends what he calls the second in the series of "Flashes of Fate," reading as follows:

Would be brave
Ignored wave
Watery grave.

Tale of the transfers—Two strangers got aboard a Kingston City car on Fair street wanting to go to Kingston Point. As one of the men paid the fare he asked the conductor if they were on the right line. The conductor took time enough off from discussing the chances in the world series to observe that the car did not go through but he would give them transfers for the other line. Time passed—so did the car. Finally the conductor hurried one last remark: "There's nothing to it—the Dodgers will win sure," and handed the stranger two transfers. They alighted at Fischer's Square. No car in sight. Time passed as it always does while waiting for a Colonial car. Finally the car arrived and they got aboard. By and by the conductor came around for the fares and was handed the transfers. He looked at them and observed, "Can't accept those, they are not for this car."

The stranger asked why, but all the response he got was, "They are not for this car." The passenger was somewhat bashful and rather than have a scene he forked over another dime. Later he glanced at the useless transfers and after considerable study found the solution. The other conductor had punched them an hour ahead.

Not that it is important, but an exchange mentions the fact that A. F. Ford has bought a Ford.

Even the conductors on the trolley cars were pleased over the pleasant change in the weather for whenever a passenger entered the car today they would immediately say "Fare."—Excuse it please.

The woman haters—They stood on the street corner the two of them and by every tone of their voice and every gesture used it was evident they were not in love—with the subject under discussion, that of women. In fact, judging from their tone and the women haters, pure and simple. Suddenly a vision in pink with hair dressed low and skirts high paused and in sweetly modulated tones asked "Would one of you gentlemen mind directing me to the Senate House."

That was a day ago, and now the two women haters are not on speaking terms. They both had insisted on accompanying the vision to show her the Senate House, each refusing to leave the "arduous" job to the other.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Oct. 5.—On next Wednesday evening, Oct. 11th, the Ladies Aid and Epworth League Societies will unite in giving an oyster supper in the Methodist Church basement. A steaming hot oyster stew is just the thing to be desired on one of these cool fall nights, so come one, come all and avail yourselves of the opportunity. Supper will be served from six o'clock until all are supplied.

The Ladies' Aid business meeting held at Mrs. Charles C. Beaver's on Wednesday afternoon was well attended. Arrangements were made for the annual fair, the date of which will be published later, but it is quite certain that it will be held some time during the month of November.

Leslie Mott, Percy Mott, Louis Goodrich and David Lundy motored to Sheephead Bay on Saturday to attend the automobile races. They report a very enjoyable trip notwithstanding the fact that some very cool weather was experienced on the return trip.

Mrs. Frank Cole has removed her household goods from Jersey City and in the future will make her home in this village.

Howard Wright of New York city is paying a visit to his mother, who has been ill for the past few weeks.

Vincent Bullen has returned from his visit to the metropolis and will remain in Esopus during the winter and attend the Kingston High School.

After spending two weeks in Esopus, visiting friends, Rev. and Mrs. William H. Austin returned to Middle Hope on Friday last. Mrs. Austin's mother, Mrs. Ada Oldes, left for the same place on Saturday morning. Miss Amy Smith and Miss Rena Lottong of this village will be their guests for a week or more.

Among the large number who are registered at the Kingston High School we are pleased to note the following from Esopus: Vincent Bullen, Gould Ganoung, Philip O'Reilly, Ralph Beaver, George Huth and Howard Thompson. The majority of these journey to and from Kingston on their bicycles.

The Misses Margaret O'Reilly and Winifred Hesse go by train and it certainly requires some hustling to catch the 6:18.

Mrs. Emory Freer and daughters are moving to Kingston for the winter months. They will reside on Green street.

Mr. Monticely and family have their home at that place and rented gone to Greenwich, Conn., to occupy their home in this village to Walter Stewart and family.

William Mott of Newburgh spent Sunday with his uncle, S. E. Mott of this place.

HAITI IS HELPED BY INTERVENTION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—One of the most interesting experiments in government to be found anywhere in the world today is being conducted by the United States. It is being tried out on the island of Haiti, upon which are located the Black Republic of Haiti and the Mulatto Republic of Santo Domingo. The nature of the experiment and the causes which led up to this unique government venture are set forth in a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

"After a century of effort to maintain itself as a separate, independent, sovereign nation, Santo Domingo in 1905 found itself about to fall a victim to its own excesses," says the bulletin. "Revolution had followed revolution almost with clocklike regularity. There were assassinations, there were betrayals, there were conspiracies, there were wars within and wars without—war with Haiti over boundary questions and civil war over the control of the government. Debts were piled up without thought of the day of payment or even provisions for meeting the interest charges.

"So long and so steady was the orgy of revolution, speculation, debt-making and interest-dodging that the nation's credit grew worse than that of its individual citizens. Finally the day of reckoning came. Foreign warships approached the ports whose harbors had given refuge to the great discoverer Columbus and whose capital city still contains what undoubtedly are his ashes, and demanded that the claims of their subjects be satisfied—claims for money advanced, claims for interest accumulated, claims for property wantonly destroyed—and they demanded it at the point of big naval guns.

"In a predicament from which they were powerless to extricate themselves, the Dominicans were ready enough to negotiate a treaty turning over the control of the country's customs to the United States if, in return therefor, the United States would protect them from angry European creditors and rejuvenate their treasury.

"And so it was that in 1905 the United States undertook to serve as treasurer of Santo Domingo and to vouch for her debts. The tariff was quickly revised, the American authorities argued that duties be laid on luxuries rather than upon necessities, upon the things of the rich rather than upon those of the poor. The tariff as a whole was cut down, the general reduction being 50 per cent on export taxes and 14 per cent on import duties.

"And yet in spite of this great reduction, in spite of payments of $1,200,000 a year on the debt, there was still left a greater net income for the use of the government than it ever had before.

"For a long time it was thought that deprived of the opportunity of securing customs-house revenues through the seizure of ports, revolutions could not support themselves. But after six or seven years of peace trouble broke out again, and during 1914 and 1915 it became so serious that the United States was forced to intervene in behalf of peace and to demand, with marines on shore and naval guns trained and pointed on the ports, that the country return to a state of quiet. And so today the Dominicans, realizing that the Monroe Doctrine is determined to afford them protection from their own excesses, their own bitter passions and blind purposes, have accepted the inevitable and have secured the blessings of peace from without when they could not attain that end themselves. It is a reluctant acquiescence they yield, but a wholesome one, none the less.

"It has not been without effort or without expense, nor yet without the actual sacrifice of blood and life that our country has stepped in to play the role of Good Samaritan to the peoples of Santo Domingo, Haiti and Nicaragua, who had lost the blessings of peace and were unable to regain them. In Haiti alone we lost one officer and six marines and had a number wounded. But out of this altruistic effort are growing results of which a nation that covets no territory, that seeks only its own security and the welfare of its unfortunate neighbors, may well be proud.

"In Porto Rico we have reduced the death rate from 19 per thousand to 19 per thousand, and a beginning along the same line is being made in these new fields of American endeavor. In Porto Rico wages have increased from 16 cents to 75 cents, and stable conditions show encouraging results in the same direction in our new ward lands. In Porto Rico the school attendance jumped from 20 per cent to more than 85, and these new wards are trying to follow in Porto Rico's path.

"Wherever America has gone, whether to Cuba, whether to Panama, whether to Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, Nicaragua, the Philippines or Haiti, the welfare of the people has been her first concern, and while all colonial history shows that the tares of evil are never absent from the wheat of good, our nation's record of help given where most needed is one that well may challenge our admiration, and quicken our patriotism.

"The success in Santo Domingo customs administration led to another experiment along the same line, a few years later. Nicaragua became revolution-torn, resulting in the overthrow of Zelaya and the conversion of the country from an unmanageable anarchy to a ruinous anarchy. Rival factions issued fiat money as freely as tap water flows from a spigot. The treasury was bankrupt, interest was in default, foreign creditors were threatening to collect their debts with gunboats and cruisers, and there was not enough money to be had by the party in power even to pay salaries, much less soldiers' wages. The offer of the United States to perform for the Nicaraguans a service similar to that given the Dominicans was accepted, and here again the plan worked beautifully as long as hydro-headed revolution remained under cover. Trouble came, however, and only the presence of American marines has served to keep the peace. The 'outs' are bitterly opposed to the role being played by the United States; but Nicaragua is being rejuvenated in spite of every handicap that the state of mind of its citizens entails.

"If conditions were bad in Santo Domingo when the United States undertook to help the country back to peace and prosperity, they were worse in Nicaragua when we assumed the role of guardian. But even in Nicaragua they were mild indeed

HYDROAEROPLANE STARTING FLIGHT FROM U. S. S. NORTH CAROLINA

LAUNCH AEROPLANES FROM BATTLESHIPS IN NAVAL EXPERIMENTS.
Hydroaeroplanes being launched from U. S. S. North Carolina, for a scouting expedition. The United States navy officials have been experimenting for some time with the successful launching of an airship from the specially constructed gang way for the hydroaeroplane, and the picture shows that they have obtained the desired results. This is the first picture taken showing the airship leaving a United States war vessel.

compared with those obtaining in Haiti when our country finally stepped in there.

"Our agreement with Haiti goes further than those with Santo Domingo and Nicaragua. It provides for an American-offered constabulary which shall have control of the country and the regulation of all matters pertaining to arms and ammunition. Furthermore it provides for the appointment of a sanitary engineer whose recommendations, as approved by the United States, are to be carried out in the cleaning up of the cities of the Republic.

"This new departure probably will insure peace, quiet, honest administration, and if it does, Haiti certainly will go forward as few small countries ever have. Its mountains are filled with mineral wealth; its valleys are so fertile that the slightest attention can make them produce like an Eden; its forests contain vast stores of precious hardwoods and dyewoods. Haiti is a land of great promise, has lavished its richest gifts, where a simple population, under a firm yet gentle, beneficent guidance, may realize the blessings of tranquil abundance."

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Oct. 6.—Nothing more effectively demonstrates the fact that the present prosperity of the United States is due to the European war and must terminate with its end, unless new policies are adopted, than the figures showing the extent and character of the export trade, because the figures are official, are compiled by the Democratic administration, and about them, therefore, there can be no controversy. Seventeen articles entering into the manufacture of actual munitions, foodstuffs and various supplies for the great armies of Europe, have constituted this year 64.7 per cent of the total exports of this nation. During 1914, these articles constituted 31.7 per cent of the total exports. During the fiscal year 1914, when normal conditions prevailed, the exports of these seventeen articles amounted to $751,173,390. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, with the war in full blast, the exports of these seventeen articles amounted to $2,722,203,247. The gain in the exportation of these seventeen articles alone amounted to $1,971,029,857. That gain would pay the wages of over a million and three-quarter men for a year at $3.50 a day for each working day. So much for the export trade in war munitions and supplies. But the other side of the state is equally important. While there has been this tremendous gain in supplies for the armies, there has been serious falling off in other lines. The loss in ordinary exports—as distinguished from war exports—for the fiscal year of 1916 amounted to $208,316,108. Should the sudden ending of the war result in the return of war exports to the normal, therefore, the total loss would reach the startling amount of $2,700,000,000. The number of men which such a loss of export trade would throw out of employment is appalling.

Mr. Root's Speech.

One of the greatest contributions to the national campaign as well as to the history of this nation, is the classic speech delivered by Elihu Root, former secretary of state, at Carnegie Hall, New York. With compelling logic, lucid illustration and unimpassioned oratory, Mr. Root analyzed the record of this administration, showed the estimate in which, as a result of the Wilson foreign policy, the United States has come to be held by foreign powers and the danger which that estimate involves. "We are told that Mr. Wilson has kept the country out of war," he said at one point. "So has every president for seventy years except Lincoln and McKinley. Never since Columbus sighted San Salvador has there been a time when it was so easy for America to keep out of war by doing nothing as it has been during the great conflict now raging in the world. All the great powers of the world, except ourselves, have had their hands full with existing enemies. They have been straining every resource to the utmost to avoid being conquered by the enemies in arms against them. Our danger is not now, as it was in the past, that we will be overtaken by the great war is raging, but later, when peace has been made and the great armies are free and rulers and governments look about for ways to repair their losses, and the great spaces and ill-defended wealth of the new world loom large on the horizon of their desires." Without bitterness, but with telling force, Mr. Root traced the course of the Wilson administration. He declared that the great safeguard of a nation was its reputation for character and manliness and courage and that with such reputation gone it was almost certain to be so imposed upon by foreign aggressors as to make war unescapable.

Roosevelt Answers Lane.

The Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Lane, who was quoted by Col. Roosevelt in his Battle Creek speech as having said that the notesteading policy had been a failure, recently sent a public letter to Mr. Roosevelt objecting to the use of his remarks and asserting that the Chief Justice of the United States regarded the "note sending" as a great diplomatic triumph. Col. Roosevelt has answered Secretary Lane in a letter which will afford Mr. Wilson's supporter little comfort. Mr. Roosevelt points out that the opinion credited to the Chief Justice was expressed long before that eminent jurist had had an opportunity to judge of the note-following policy. The fact is that Chief Justice White, Louisiana and life-long Democrat as he is, holds this administration in a supreme contempt which only the restrictions of the ermine prevent him from expressing in terms as forcible as some of his own decisions, in the Supreme Court. Were he free to express himself, his words would be even more embarrassing to Mr. Lane and his idol than Colonel Roosevelt's communication.

Wilson and Hughes.

In an appeal to young voters who called on him at his summer home, President Wilson uttered the following casuistry: "If they are going to change our foreign policy, in what direction are they going to change it? There is only one choice as against peace, and that is war." Mr. Wilson has on occasion given evidence of too much intelligence to permit anyone to believe his statement sincere. The pretended logic of his remark cannot but be regarded as a further manifestation of that "intellectual dishonesty" with which ex-President Cleveland charged him. To Mr. Wilson's soporific Gov. Hughes has replied, and his words are worthy the thoughtful consideration of every voter. Said Mr. Hughes: "The alternative of a weak and vacillating policy is not war; it is a firm instance upon firm rights in a world where all nations desire our friendship, and we desire the friendship of all, and where only the most inexcusable blunder could drag us into strife."

Changed Again.

Once more President Wilson has changed his mind and it is now announced, apparently authoritatively, that he will make four trips west before the election. On the first of these he has already started. After his present trip he will journey to Indiana, which the Democratic managers still regard as a doubtful state, to speak on October 12. Later he will make a trip to Chicago and speak there on October 19. Returning to Shadow Lawn for a celebration on October 21, he will journey to Cincinnati to speak October 26, and he will make two political speeches in New York. Of course Mr. Wilson is not "stumping." He is merely making political trips on the eve of the election, to show himself and make political speeches to non-partisan assemblies, in those states where the Democratic managers think it will do the most good. Of course no one will for a moment suspect that these dates and places or the subject of the president's speeches are chosen for political reasons.

Lansing's Hard Task.

The emphatic protest of France and England against Carranza's seizure of French and British banks in Mexico, and their insistence on holding the United States responsible has imposed a difficult task on the Secretary of State. On Mr. Lansing now devolves the duty of convincing these misguided diplomats and their respective foreign offices that theft by Carranza is not theft, that murder by Carranza is not murder and that war by Carranza is not war, but that all these merely constitute "service to humanity," which should command the respect of every right thinking nation.

MISS CLARA BISHOFF
 GIRL OFFERS SELF AS BRIDE TO PROVIDE FOR MOTHER.

New York, Oct. 6.—Inability to provide for herself and her invalid mother has led Miss Clara Bishoff, of Greenport, L. I., to make an unusual offer to marry any honest and respectable man who will provide for her and her mother.

Miss Bishoff makes the offer in good faith. She and her mother are now living in two rooms in the basement of the doctor's residence in Greenport. The girl has been unable to find employment and in desperation decided to make the offer of marriage as the only way out of her difficulty. I know this public offer to marry any man who will provide for my mother is startling," says Miss Bishoff, "but I was desperate. I cannot support my mother by my own unaided efforts. I cannot even leave her to go out to do what work I could get to do. Situated as I am, I meet no eligible man, so I thought I would make my proposition a business one—telling what I could give as a wife and what I should expect from a husband—in the hope that it would appeal to some man who wanted a good housekeeper and a good thrifty wife and was willing to pay for them."

Bread of Uniform Quality

"Good things come in small packages," is a saying that refutes the claims of bakers who make a noise about alleged big bread loaves lacking purity and wholesomeness.

TEICHLER'S STEAMED WHEAT BREAD

is not a "big" but a generous-sized loaf—better baked, better grained and better tasting than those so-called "big" loaves, which have nothing but puffed-up size and sogginess to recommend them. There is real enjoyment in buying our better bread. It holds its freshness and flavor—it is enjoyed to the last crust—and none of it is wasted. It is always sold clean in the neat waxed wrapper, and you always get the same high quality.

STANDARD ROAD AT LAST DEVISED

Hit or Miss Methods of Construction to Be Abandoned.

IT WILL BE ECONOMICAL

This Newest Type of Road Combines the Best Properties of Three Types of Highways—Monroe County, Mich., Was First to Build Under the New Plan.

The American standard road has at last been devised, and when adopted generally it will mean relief from the uneconomic hit or miss methods attending present construction of miscellaneous types of roads. It inflicts upon no patents and wipes out the costly competition between manufacturers of road materials, thus effecting a saving of $2,000 to $5,000 a mile in the cost of permanent roads. The American standard road is everybody's road from the standpoint of satisfactory service and economy. It is nobody's road in the sense implied by the use of a single material. It combines the best properties of three types of familiar roads—the stone of the old macadam road, the asphalt of the bituminous macadam road and the portland cement of the concrete road.

The stone, of course, is used throughout. The cement is used for a concrete foundation and the natural asphalt for an asphalt macadam wearing surface. Thus each surface is confined to the purpose to which it is best adapted. Monroe county, Mich., is building forty miles of the new type of road for less than $12,000 a mile. And this price includes a six inch concrete curb at the sides of the five inch concrete base. The specifications also call for a two inch Bernadine or natural asphalt macadam wearing surface, so as to insure a resilient and lasting top adapted to both horse and motor traffic. The Michigan road will cost $8,000 a mile less than an all concrete road. The price of the latter, according to the latest announcement of the Portland Cement association, is now $15,000 a mile.

But the Michigan road was not devised as an experiment. A few examples of the type were built years ago, thus affording long time tests, some of them covering a period of ten years. However, experience with separate types of roads has shown that in the case of country roads subjected to horse and motor traffic asphalt macadam makes an ideal wearing surface, while it has also been demonstrated that no foundation material exceeds concrete in durability and strength. Hence the combination not only makes for efficiency but low initial cost and minimum maintenance. The latter important economies are obtained through simplified methods of construction and by reducing the quantities of cement and asphalt required for separate types of roads, but without sacrifice of stability and satisfactory service.

Thus there is available at last a permanent road of approximately the cost of water bound macadam, a type of highway that will become still cheaper when methods of construction are thoroughly standardized. These roads, with their attractive and elastic asphalt wearing surfaces, sharply defined curb lines and unyielding concrete foundations, will become the rule once the public learns of their low initial cost. No desirable feature of any other type of road has been eliminated. The composite road can not be transformed into mud or dust. No boulevard or park road presents a more even and attractive surface. Its adoption will simplify matters for the engineer and contractor, making good results more certain, but most important is the saving to the taxpayer through greatly reduced initial cost and low maintenance.

MILLIONS FOR HIGHWAYS.
 $300,000,000 For 1916 Estimate of the American Highway Association.
 During the year 1916 it is not unlikely that about $300,000,000 will be spent on highways and highway bridges in the United States, or about as much as one-third the cost of the federal government for the fiscal year 1915-16. The average citizen who is asked to vote for the issue of highway bonds and who pays road taxes, as well as the expert, has the right to know how the money is expended and that it shall be expended for road building and road maintenance so as to obtain the largest economical results.

That such results may be reached the American Highway Association has entered upon a campaign of education by bringing together in its book "A general outline of the methods in use in the different states of conducting road improvements and of raising funds for such work; an untechnical and practical explanation of different types of road improvements, culverts and bridges; a statement of the methods of maintenance and of preventing dust; a digest of the current specifications of the highway departments of several states where road work is carried on extensively; an explanation of the principles underlying the different classes of bonds issued to pay for highway improvements and finally to supply lists of manufacturers of machinery and materials for road work."

OLD TAX DODGING GAME DISCOVERED

Ulster County Towns Used by Many Corporations for Home Offices Is Charged at Albany—State Claims That Taxes Are Avoided as Result of Practice.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 6.—According to the members of the State Tax Commission, thousands upon thousands of dollars are lost to the state each year because of the inability of the state tax laws to bring to justice the incorporators of gigantic trusts who dodge the state tax by naming obscure places as their principal offices. This practice has been in operation for some time, yet the state tax department, knowing the facts, has been powerless to interfere.

During the past few months there has been filed in the office of the secretary of state numerous articles of incorporation of concerns with large capital stock, yet with the principal offices named in out of the way villages. As a matter of fact, the state tax authorities say that there is no tangible property for the local assessors to assess in the majority of instances, a result which practically means a loss to the state treasury.

Just how many corporations in the state are playing up the out of the way principal office subterfuge, is a matter which the state tax officials are quietly investigating. When the list is ready it is said that a statement will be issued as to the aggregate amount of taxes which should be collected is never added to the fund of the state treasury.

In some instances there are in reality no principal offices in the places named in the articles of incorporation," said one of the state tax commissioners. "Business of the peace are frequently named on the boards of directors and it has happened that the offices of the corporation are in the office of that official."

In the county of Ulster the principal offices of a number of large corporations are located, according to the articles of incorporation upon which they have secured their charters. At the present time little activity is said to be connected with these corporations in the several localities in Ulster county. The state tax department is aware of this fact, and is endeavoring to bring it to the attention of the legislature.

Corporations, the state tax officials say, have followed the example of individuals who have escaped a large share of their taxes by moving to localities where they cannot be reached, thus adding to the vast amount of real estate which escapes the levy of the state.

It is the plan of the state tax commission, it is said, to endeavor to have the legislature adopt a resolution this year providing for a referendum upon the proposition to compel corporations to pay taxes no matter where their principal offices are located. If it is voted to hold another constitutional convention in 1918, then the tax law will be amended to take care of the matter, if possible.

Brought Big Money.

Corn raised from seed found among Aztec curios in New Mexico sold at the rate of $1,250,000 a carload in Kansas. However, only 100 grains were sold, but at the rate paid—two cents a grain—a carload lot would cost a million and one-quarter dollars. The corn is not unlike the "calico" corn grown in many parts of the country.

SPANISH ROYAL CHILDREN

LATEST PICTURE OF SPANISH ROYAL CHILDREN.

Here is the latest picture of the children of the King and Queen of Spain, taken in the garden at La Granja, the summer palace. The Prince of the Asturias, heir to the throne, is the second boy from the right, in the back. The smaller girl, seated in the pony phaeton is Princess Beatrix while the larger girl standing at the left is Princess Christine.

FRENCH & GERMANS IN SAME TRENCH

ENEMIES IN THE SAME TRENCH.

This remarkable war photograph shows French and German troops in a communication-trench on the Somme front. The Kaiser's soldiers are shown looking boldly over their parapet at the far end of the trench to see what the French picket is doing. At the time the photograph was made the French troops were under orders to stand fast and watch the enemy through loopholes. The French soldiers have hand grenades on their parapet, ready to hurl.

Good Farm Homes.

It is not necessary to go to the city to get a modern home. A ram home can be built for three or four thousand dollars that would cost nearly twice as much in the city. A lighting and heating system can be installed as cheaply in the country and kept up at a much smaller expense than similar conveniences can be kept in the city home.

Fleet Indian Bullocks.

South India has some of the famous little trotting bullocks, "galais," a breed unsurpassed for swiftness, but quite small. Some of these animals, even when full grown, are no bigger than a large dog. They are much used in light carts.

Perfectly Cut Diamond.

A properly cut diamond has 58 facets, including the table and culet; the 32 facets above the girdle should be 40 per cent of the girdle and the angle from the girdle to the table should be 35 degrees and from the girdle to the culet 40 degrees. A perpendicular line drawn from the center of the table to the center of the culet will be one-third above the girdle and two-thirds below.

First Requisite of Bravery.

The bravest are the most humane, the most kind; and if anyone would be truly brave let him learn to be gentle and tender to everyone and everything about him.—Rev. Arthur Sewell.

More Artistic Cemeteries.

Many of the large cemeteries the country over have stopped the individual planting on graves. All work is done in them by the cemetery association. This tends to keep the cemeteries more park-like and does away with the scattered effect of present planting methods. The old method has a sentiment about it that is hard to break away from, but the restricted planting makes a much prettier effect.—Lelley Cady.

Who Will Offer a Baby?

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—Three men and a woman, the latter alleged to be the leader of the band, were arrested here early today as suspects in the murder of Henry Rider, of Howell, Mich., and the wounding of three others in an automobile near Burlington yesterday.The prisoners are Mrs. Mille de Marco, 22, Giuseppe Russo, Frank Vessalo and Frank Ladonna, all of this city. The two last named are detained as material witnesses, while the woman and Russo are held in connection with the murder.The four are alleged to have been traced through a Pennsylvania motor license number. The car was seen at Atison, N. J., near the place where the murder occurred, yesterday morning. It carried ten men and the woman, and the crowding of the occupants into the machine drew such comment that a resident jotted down the number—114,220—which resulted in the arrests.The prisoners will be given a hearing later today.STANDING PAT ON American commissioners are stand-

"MOTHER" JONES SEES LABOR
CRISIS FOR U. S.New York, Oct. 6.—"Mother" Jones, widely known for her activities in behalf of striking miners in various sections of the country, declared today that the nation was face to face with the "greatest industrial revolution the world has ever seen."She assailed capital, which she declared would spend "every penny it could raise" to defeat the eight-hour law for the railroad workers.
"Mother" Jones said she came to town primarily on personal business, but that she would do what she could to aid the striking carmen."The sympathetic strike movement is a bad one," said she. "I do not approve of it because, in a majority of cases, the other trades have contracts which should be inviolate.
Labor should be the fount of truth.
Let grasping capitalists break contracts if they dare!"

Meagher reports that the trip was very successful and that abundance of the work done is expected to bear fruit this week or next in the number of men who will enlist at the local station from the various towns visited.Two days of the trip were spent at the Seneca County Fair at Waterloo where Captain Meagher had a tent. "In all the towns visited, no opposition was met with in our aims to enlist recruits, with the exception of one small town near here," said Captain Meagher, "and the opposition came from a woman in the form of a severe calling down mixed with abuse for the service of Uncle Sam."In her chiding, the woman's adverseness for the service was shown to result from the fact that she had a son who had enlisted against her wishes. Expressing the uniform of the captain she made for him and so bitter were her words at times that she told Captain Meagher that she would like to dig her fingers into his eyes, stating that it was the man with the uniform that persuaded her son to join the service against her will and his. All the time, Captain Meagher retained his self composure with the result that a woman companion took the harangue by the army and in taking er away stated that "you can never charging the jury, he is not at all culpable for the condition that exists. He did, however, discuss the matter with one of the grand jury members until after the grand jury reported.

"From your statements of the evidence in this case, I think the defendants are guilty of the lesser charge, and if the district attorney is willing, I would suggest that such a plea be accepted."

Do "Innocents" Carry Copper Away?

District Attorney Traver said he did not care to answer the charge which this young man made regarding the trial jury, and he trusted that such remarks would not influence him in the slightest degree in his judgment or feelings in this or any other case, but it was necessary that the court should have a complete statement of the facts.

The defendants, said District Attorney Traver, had been caught in the act of removing copper and other plumbing from a vacant building owned by Moses McMullen at Marlborough. When caught by the officers they had entered, and Monday was the first he had ever heard of any intention on their part that they had companions, although they had been under arrest since July 17.

At the time they were caught, said District Attorney Traver, one of the defendants was carrying a bundle of copper, which had been removed from its place in the building, and the other was carrying a bundle of plumbing fixtures which had been removed from their proper place. If that fact was not evidence of why they were in the building, he could not imagine what their purpose could have been.

Judge Jenkins said that he had not been aware of this phase of the case. The evidence before the grand jury was sworn testimony, and if such evidence showed that they had copper and fixtures belonging to the building in their possession, he would suggest that the plea be not accepted and in view of their version of the affair, that they stand trial.

District Attorney Traver said the only evidence before the grand jury related to these two defendants and there was no indication that others had been in the building. He recognized fully the fact that it was a hardship for them to remain in jail if they were really anxious to be tried at once, and he would accept the plea of both defendants for the lesser degree of the offense if it should meet with the approval of the court.

"Did you have any copper or other fixtures in your possession when you were arrested?" asked Judge Jenkins. "No," said both defendants.

"Did you expect to share in the swag in any way?" he asked, and they again answered "No."

They Get Six Months in Jail. Judge Jenkins said that under the circumstances he would accept the plea of guilty to unlawfully entering a building.

Smith, in answer to the usual questions, said his occupation was laborer; age, 31 years; born at Lowell, Mass.; lives at East Elm-hurst, Long Island; can read and write; is single; father is living; habits are temperate; has had opportunity for religious instruction in the Catholic faith.

Cadigan said he is a shoemaker by occupation; lives at Rosendale, Mass.; can read and write; is single; mother is living; habits are temperate; has had opportunity for religious instruction in the Catholic faith.

Both said they had never been convicted before.

Judge Jenkins sentenced each of them to imprisonment in the Ulster county jail for six months.

"This Will Ruin My Reputation," Says Torrey. District Attorney Traver moved on in the case of The People against James V. Torrey, who pleaded guilty on Wednesday to an indictment charging arson in the second degree, in setting fire to buildings owned by himself and Michael A. Reis in the town of Rosendale on September 13th. Torrey was captured as he emerged from his barn after firing it, by District Attorney Traver, Sheriff Shultis, Under Sheriff Honbeck and Chief of Police Wood. Torrey gave his pedigree at the time he pleaded guilty on Wednesday.

"Judge, I haven't any lawyer," said Torrey, as he stood up to receive sentence. "I haven't had money to hire a lawyer; I've used my money."

"What little I had—to pay my debts."

"I'm here at your mercy. My mother is a very old lady, and this thing is hard for her. I don't believe I'll ever see her alive again. I've asked her to go to the City Home, but she won't do it."

"If you knew this case as well as I do, I'm sure you'd be as lenient with me as you can. I'm fifty-seven years old and I've never been convicted before. This crime will ruin my reputation—it will ruin me forever in the way of making money, and for a man without reputation or money in this world it's a hard deal."

"I wouldn't have done it, but my mind seemed a blank, and I couldn't tell you just what I did. I saw those people there when I came out, but I didn't recognize one of them, although I know them all; I talked to them but I don't remember what I said."

"My mind was a blank from over-work and worry," he said. "I worked hard in the harvest field all summer, and that made me nervous. Then I took my brother in and thought he'd help me, but he drank and that worried me. Then mother came and she was not well, and that worried me. I didn't work so hard in my life before. I worked lots of days from four o'clock in the morning until eleven o'clock at night, and when I came home from the hay field my shirt was wringing wet."

"I live long enough to get out of this, there will never be any occasion for anything else of this sort."

"I can't think of anything else I want to say," added Torrey after a minute's hesitation. "I thank you, one and all, for the courtesy I've received here. That's all."

Torrey Gets Minimum of 3 1/2 Years.

In passing sentence, Judge Jenkins said:

"Torrey, you have been going around for some time, and if you had not been checked, in your peculiar mental condition you probably would not, probably did not recognize the wrong you were committing against yourself and against society. You seem to lack moral judgment. Your idea has seemed to be that if you could get away with a job, well and good. You did not have in mind the consequences that would follow your act, but your offense is a serious one. Within the last few years the legislature of this state, recognizing how serious it is, changed the degree of your crime from arson in the third to arson in the second degree. The maximum penalty is twenty-five years, and it is one of those offenses which calls for a severe penalty for the example it sets before others. I myself do not believe so much in making an example of a man convicted for crime, as in dealing with the facts in each individual case as it arises. I think I know you, and from what you have said of your unfortunate mental condition, I am going to be as lenient as possible with you, but the offense demands some severity, and the sentence of the court is that you be confined at hard labor in the Ulster State Prison at Dannemora for a maximum term of not more than ten years and a minimum term of not less than three and one-half years."

Thank you, Judge," said Torrey, as he sat down.

Court adjourned until two o'clock this afternoon.

Poultry, pastry ingredients and practically all other kind of food-stuff has had its price increased in all of Broadway's favorite resorts.

BORDENS BACK UP ON LONG CONTRACT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 6.—A hitch arose in the tentative settlement of the milk controversy this afternoon and as a result the situation resumed its previous character of a deadlock between the dealers and farmers.

All other demands were met. The farmers stand pat on the six-month contract condition. The Borden Company is the leader of the big distributors and its actions are decisive for the others.

Howard acted as best man, and Mrs. Howard left on an early evening train for a short wedding trip. They will be at home at 116 Manor Avenue after October 15.

Madame Polifeme Addresses D. A. R.

Rarely interesting and unusual was the opening meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., held at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon. In addition to the business session, which was of itself exceptionally full of interest, including the choosing of a delegate and alternates to the coming State D. A. R. Convention, those present were privileged to listen to Madame Carlo Polifeme, who as the guest of Mrs. George DuBois and Mrs. Philip Deyo of New Paltz, having the program in charge, brought a living message from France.

The meeting was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Philip Elting, Mrs. De La Porte of Rhinebeck asked to make a "member at large," partly because she hoped to inaugurate a new Chapter of the D. A. R., and her request was granted. Mrs. West, historian of the Chapter, read a list of historical incidents of note which have taken place during the month of October, during the near and far past.

Those present were also privileged to listen to a letter from Mrs. Louise K. Thiers of Wurtsburg, who has passed her hundred and second birthday, and who is an ardent Daughter of the American Revolution. A picture of Mrs. Thiers showed her to be a woman of notable personality and character.

On November 9th, and 10th, the New York State D. A. R. Convention will be held at Albany, and Mrs. Stafford was chosen as the Chapter delegate. Alternates for Regent were named, being Mrs. Elvyn Bogart, Mrs. Weed, and Mrs. Hyman Roosa, while those for delegates were Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. Ralph Clearwater, and Mrs. John Brodhead.

The Chapter was presented by the regent with three lineage books, which gift was duly appreciated. An out of town guest of the afternoon was Mrs. Walker, mother of Mrs. Raymond Sanderson, who is member of the Jacksonville (Florida) Chapter, and also a member at large. In a few appreciative words, Mrs. Walker extended the greetings of the Jacksonville Chapter.

Arrangements were made at Thursday's meeting, for the observation of October 16th, Chapter Day, and it was announced that the Chapter would hold a special meeting on that afternoon, at which time the Countess Von Krockow would be the speaker. It will be recalled that the Countess von Krockow was formerly a Miss Schoonmaker of Saugerties who early in life married a German Count. The most of her life has been spent in the Court circles of Germany, where she had every opportunity to observe the militarism of the land. She has written for the Atlantic Monthly on German Art and German Literature, and also for other notable American magazines. She has also lectured to schools and women's clubs, her specialty along this line appertaining to European history, art and literature. To all chapter members was extended the privilege of inviting one guest to this gathering, and an invitation will also be extended to the officers or alternates of the Hudson and Saugerties Chapters.

At the close of the business session, the speaker of the afternoon was introduced, Madame Carlo Polifeme, President Le Lyceum Societe des Femmes de France, her subject being "Madame and Marquis de La Fayette." The speaker pictured Madame La Fayette representing that ideal which upheld in French family life would demand of the daughters of the land just that devotion, faith and loyalty to home and country that the women of France are now showing. The sketch of La Fayette was largely in the nature of a psychological summing up of the man and the influence which went to make of him the splendid character that he was. Through the impression made upon him by Washington, his own spirit of justice, love and fidelity was greatly intensified. Interesting as was Madame Polifeme's talk, perhaps new to many, it was also a rare opportunity to hear the voice of a woman who has lived in the heart of France, and who is intimately destined for President Poincaré and sister. The album has the endorsement of Ambassador Jusserand, is intrinsically beautiful and artistic. The wooden cover bears a hand painted design, the central part of which is a composite flag of the Allies. In one corner is the seal of Le Lyceum, and around the border appears thirteen stars, typifying the original colonies. Various pages of the book have been set aside for representative Americans in various walks of life, and already the album contains the signature of Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, J. P. Morgan, Jr., John D. Rockefeller, Joseph H. Choate, besides a host of other distinguished Americans. Two pages were reserved for New Paltz and its old families. Another page was set aside for the Daughters of the American Revolution, and this will be illustrated by Mrs. Julia Dillon of this city. The chapter was enthusiastic in its expressions of highest appreciation of the treat given them by the New Paltz members in bringing Madame Polifeme to speak to them.

During the closing social hour, Mrs. Charles Schermerhorn and Mrs. Raymond Sanderson served tea and wafers.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

They may trade or they may sell Jack Barry if they will. But those world series shakels keep going to him still.

"Black Jack" Barry is "in" again. A big league regular for eight seasons, he has "homed" into six world series splits. It's a "lucky guy" record that probably won't be beaten for years and years.

Barry was corralled by Connie Mack in 1905 after he had performed brilliantly for the Holy Cross college team. The next season he became a regular, and the following one he contracted the world series habit. Only once since then has he been able to shake it off.

Barry, with the Athletics, took part in the world series of 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1915. When Connie Mack wrecked his great machine, "Black Jack" was sold to the Red Sox and right away the Sox won two pennants—1915 and 1916.

Perhaps the luckiest part of this lucky guy's luck is that only once has he had to take the loser's end of the dough bag. That was in 1914 when the Braves steamrolled the Mackmen. On all other occasions he got the fattest portion of the bulge.

Barry has corralled about $20,000 through post season melon cuts so far. This year about $4,000 more will go to him. $24,000 extra "pay" in eight years? Not so bad, eh, Oscar?

Walsh Another "Lucky Guy."

Jimmy Walsh is another fortunate specimen. He's had a rather chequered career; never has ranked as a star—never much beyond the mediocre. Yet, Joins has been pushed into three world series.

He was sold to the Athletics by Baltimore in 1913 and the deal was put through just in time to get him in on the drive. In 1914 he was let out to the Yankees but taken back by the Athletics in time to let him in on another share of the world series money.

And this season Joins hebs up in a Red Sox uniform and as a participant in the distribution of the mazzina.

World seriesing won't be a new experience for at least three of the Dodgers. Marquard, Merkle and Myers form the trio upon whom the "soft" money is to be shovelled again. The three were supposed to have outlived most of their usefulness when John McGraw let them go to the Dodgers, yet they are not too feeble to collect $2,000 or $4,000 in extra money this year.

Each of the three has figured in three world series already. This year adds make their fourth. As members of the 1911, 1912 and 1913 Giants they each drew down a total of about $11,000 to assist in soothing and sustaining them in their old age.

"Rube" and the Indian catcher were somewhat peeved when John "shooed" them off to Brooklyn—but they are peevish no more. They are "in" on a world series split. John and his "useful" players are not.

TO EXTEND MAIN
ON MURRAY STREET

Water Board also Decides Not to Extend Mains on Lincoln and Florence Streets—Other Matters.

The regular monthly meeting of the water board was held on Thursday afternoon at the city hall with President Hauck presiding and Commissioners Roach, Canfield and Harrison present. The only absentee was Major Chandler, who is at the front.

Commissioner Roach reporting for the committee on extensions and improvements stated that he was in favor of the Murray street extension of the water main. The main would be extended about 200 feet and would do away with a dead end and increase the water pressure in that vicinity. He did not see how the Lincoln street extension could be made at that point is not graded. There was but one house on that part of the street. The two other property owners who signed a petition asking that the main be extended reside on Farrelly street, in regard to the Florence street extension the commissioner said there were no houses at all on that part of the street and it would cost the board about $900 to lay the main and there would be no revenue from it. In conclusion he said he reported favorably in the matter of the Murray street extension, but unfavorably on the Lincoln and Florence streets extensions.

On motion of Commissioner Canfield the report was approved.

Superintendent Harrison said the board of public works would like the corner of Broadway and Cedar street. Peter Barman had given the city about ten feet of the sidewalk so that the acute angle at that point could be cut down and Cedar street widened at that point. This would be a big improvement. The board of public works also would like another fire hydrant installed on Thomas street. Both requests were granted by the board.

Superintendent Harrison also called the attention of the board to the idea of relaying new pipe under the West Shore crossing to replace the pipe already laid. He said the vibration from the trains caused the water pipe to leak at the joints and every so often he had to have men tear up the planking and repair the pipe to stop leakage. He was in favor of laying a pipe with universal joints which bolted together. This kind of pipe would not be affected by the jar of the passing trains. The board voted in favor of the suggestion and the matter was left in the hands of the superintendent for necessary action.

Written applications asking for the installation of meters were received from Oppenheimer on Broadway, B. J. Loughran of Hoffman street, and the State of New York National Bank. Commissioner Harrison moved that the requests be granted which was carried.

Bills and claims against the board were read and referred to the auditing committee.

Several routine matters were taken up and disposed of and the board then adjourned.
